S. T. C. ASKS FOR $781,149

BIENNIAL BUDGET IS SUBMITTED TO TAX COMMISSION.

DECREASE FROM 1924

Amount Requested Is $11,000 Less Than Last Appropriation.—$260,000 for Buildings and Alterations.

The State Teachers College will ask the Missouri Legislature for an appropriation of $781,149.08, with which to maintain the institution during the biennial period of 1927-28, according to a budget submitted to the Missouri Tax Commission yesterday.

The Tax Commission will review the budget, which is signed by B. G. Voorhees of St. Joseph and Uel W. Lamkin, president of the College. Mr. Voorhees is vice-president of the College board of regents. After considering the budget, the commission will make its report to the General Assembly, which convenes in January.

The budget this year was prepared on the minimum basis thought adequate to operate the College during the next two years. The total amount of money asked for is more than $11,000 less than the amount appropriated by the Legislature in 1925, and is more than $97,000 less than the total budget submitted by the College two years ago.

No Deficiency Reported.

Because of a release several days ago of some $42,000 by Governor Sam A. Baker, the College was able this year to submit no deficiencies in its budget for the next two years. In the budget prepared in late 1924, the institution was forced to ask for an appropriation of $54,189.64 to meet outstanding obligations.

"Our budget this year shows that the College has been able to pay its debts in full, and we are not having to ask for money to meet bills outstanding," Mr. Lamkin said in discussing the budget.

Two items in the budget this year call for money which was appropriated in 1925, but which has never been released. Of this amount, $260,000 is for buildings and alterations, and $45,649.08 is for a re-appropriation of money to complete payment on the new gymnasium at the College.

Salary Total the Same.

The budget submitted yesterday is in fourteen sections. The first, dealing with salaries, calls for $335,000 for the years 1927 and 1928. It is understood that this figure was determined by multiplying the present monthly payroll by twenty-four.

Because the enlarged summer enrollments at the College demand an augmented teaching force, the institution is asking for $10,000 to cover this item.

A number of students of the College are partially paying for their education by working part time at the institution. There are numerous jobs which can be readily handled by students, and the budget calls for an appropriation of $10,000 for this purpose.

Rural education calls for an appropriation of $12,000. This is to enable the College to carry on its present program of expansion of rural education in this part of the state, since the rural schools are used as training laboratories for many students.

An appropriation of $10,000 is asked to maintain and insure growth in the department of correspondence and extension.

$18,000 Asked For Library.

The library appropriation calls for $18,000, which is divided into two sections. Fifteen thousand dollars is asked for books and the remainder for equipment.

An item of $20,000 is asked for supplies and equipment for the College, and $15,000 is asked for general repairs and improvements. For fuel, light, and water, the budget calls for an appropriation of $30,000, stressing the fact that this amount is the minimum necessary for operation.

Eight thousand dollars is asked for improvements on the campus and grounds, and $2,500 is requested for the bureau of research, with $5,000 deemed as necessary for College publications.

An appropriation of $260,000 is asked for new buildings, alterations, and extensions of the main buildings.

For proper enlargement and improvement of the College power plant, a total of $40,000 is asked, and for alterations in the administration building, including fire exits in the auditorium, the budget asks $20,000.

$200,000 For Training School.

An appropriation of $200,000 is asked for the erection of a training school building. Maryville is the only one of the five State Teachers Colleges which does not have its own training school laboratory. This building is deemed a necessity if the department is to continue on a par with those of the other schools. This item was passed by the 1925 legislature, but the money has never been available for release.

For re-appropriation of money due on the new gymnasium, $45,649.08, plus interest until time of payment, is asked. With this money appropriated, the College can be free of all obligations on the gymnasium.

Speaking on the budget as a whole, President Lamkin said: "We have worked it out carefully, and believe that it represents the minimum on which the College can be operated successfully. We will not know what action the tax commission has taken on the matter until its report is published for the General Assembly in January."

State to Maintain Road to Braddyville

Order Will Be Effective January 1 For Highway No. 71, Beginning Near Burlington Junction.

Federal Highway No. 71, from the point where it leaves State Highway No. 18, east of Burlington Junction, to the Iowa line at Braddyville, will be maintained by the State Highway Commission, commencing January 1, according to a letter received by W. F. Phares from B. H. Piepmeier, chief highway engineer. The letter stated that an order for the maintenance of this stretch was made by the highway commission in a meeting held at Kansas City on Oct. 15.

Mr. Piepmeier is continuing his efforts to get the federal government to request the state department to expedite the improving of this highway.

The maintenance of this road by the state means a great deal to the community it serves. This stretch has been designated by the federal department as a part of the federal highway running from Canada to the South.

Fire During Rain on East 3rd Last Night

A roof fire while it was raining—an unusual occurance, according to Burt Rowley, fire chief, referring to the fire about 7 o'clock last night at the Smith home, 811 East Third street. The blaze was evidently caused by sparks from the chimney and the damage is estimated at $25.

The fire last night was the first Maryville has had since the latter part of August.

The Red Cross Is on the Job Says W. F. Phares

Citizens of Nodaway County can well afford to support the American Red Cross, W. F. Phares said today. The evidence of late shows the work of this great organization—in the Florida disaster and the Kansas floods the Red Cross was ON THE JOB FROM THE VERY FIRST. The service rendered ex-service men through our own office under the direction of Miss Betty Turner shows some of the good that is being accomplished. And too, the wonderful work of the Junior Red Cross in this county is deserving of support and our assistance.

"MISSING" MEN IN PROBE BACK

TO TESTIFY ABOUT KLAN ACTIVITIES IN INDIANA.

SENATORS AGAIN DENY

Both Watson and Robinson Reiterate They Are Not Members of Hooded Order—Charge "Frame-Up."

Indianapolis, Oct. 26.—George Elliott and Harvey Bedford, missing witnesses in the Marion County grand jury investigation of alleged political corruption in state politics, appeared before the grand jury today in answer to subpoenas.

The men, regarded as two of the most important witnesses in the inquiry, had been hunted by Prosecutor William H. Remy and his assistant for nearly a week.

Elliott is former cyclops of the Marion County Klan and Bedford was at one time an Indianapolis policeman.

Senators James E. Watson and Arthur Robinson today reiterated their denial of political deals with the Ku Klux Klan in answer to the testimony of Ralph Bradford before Senator Reed at Kansas City in the Senate hearing on Indiana politics.

Bradford, a former member of the Klan in Lake County, Indiana, asserted Robinson, at one time, was known to be a Klansman and that Watson was allied with Klan leaders in alleged political intrigues.

Robinson said the statement of Bradford was "absolutely false" and that he would make a sworn statement that he is not and never was a member of the hooded order.

"This story is made up of misstatements and falsehoods by a man who has attempted to knife me in his county for years," Watson said, regarding Bradford's testimony.

Kansas City, Oct. 26.—The Senate investigating committee can investigate activities of the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma politics only if it can be proved that the Klan participated illegally in the election there, Senator James A. Reed, chairman of the committee, said here.

Reed had received a telegram from W. M. Darnall, defeated in the primary for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Oklahoma. Darnall charged the organization with "dominating politics in Oklahoma."

"I'm not a walking grand jury," Reed said. "We can only investigate affairs there if it is proved the Klan had any illegal dealings in supporting one candidate or the other."

Washington, Oct. 26.—The Senatorial investigation into the campaign in the state of Washington spread out today to include an inquiry into the affairs of Senator Wesley L. Jones, Republican candidate for re-election.

These meetings are being largely attended and much interest is being taken in the defeat of this proposition.

WILLIAMS FOR REFERENDUM

"LET PEOPLE DECIDE PROHIBITION," HE SAYS.

ASKS SUCH PROPOSAL

Wants Legislature To Authorize Vote—Hawes Attacks Republican Scandals In Address.

St. Louis, Oct. 26.—Senator George H. Williams, Republican candidate for United States Senator from Missouri, definitely advocated a Missouri prohibition referendum in a speech here last night.

Declaring that there is no possibility of modification of the Volstead act, Williams said a change of the Eighteenth Amendment is the only way possible to bring about a change in the control of intoxicants.

"I am in favor," he said, "of a clear-cut referendum as to the attitude of our people on the Eighteenth Amendment. The question itself has never been presented to the people of Missouri. I believe further that the attitude of our people will become more composed as a result of such a referendum, more sure than any step that would be taken in Missouri on this subject, and I sincerely hope that our next Legislature will authorize the submission of an appropriate referendum on this suzject."

Williams' Democratic opponent, Harry B. Hawes, also spoke in St. Louis last night.

"The people are demanding greater simplicity, more efficiency and a larger measure of honesty in government," Hawes declared. "They are tired of Republican rule and Republican scandals.

Oil Company Seeks to Complete Fund

Stockholders in Quitman Enterprise Asked to "Come In" Before Public Offering.

Hoping to complete by the end of this week the raising of the necessary funds with which to drill a second test oil well, the Quitman Oil and Gas Co. has sent notices to all its stockholders, urging them to avail themselves at once of the opportunity to subscribe for an additional share of stock.

It is estimated that $7,000 will be ample to drill the second hole. The directors of the Quitman company ruled some time ago that additional stock to that amount should be offered first to the stockholders, before being thrown upon the public market. About $3,500 has been "spoken for" already by the stockholders, it was stated today. The notice sent out this week asks that these checks, as well as new ones, be sent to J. S. Carden, treasurer.

Oregonian Editor Denies Bribe Charge

Edgar S. Piper Declares Salem Publisher "Insane" for Accusing Him of Accepting $35,000.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 26.—Reiterating "Putnam is insane," Edgar B. Piper, editor of the Portland Oregonian, today stood by a firm denial of the charges of George H. Putnam, editor of the Salem, Ore., Capital-Journal, that the Oregonian had been paid $35,000 to oppose Senator Robert N. Stanfield in the Republican Senatorial primary.

Putnam's charge was contained in a telegram to Senator James A. Reed at Kansas City.

Miss Guelda Kable of Maryville spent the afternoon visiting friends at Wilcox.

President Is Given Additional Power

Right To Oust Federal Officers Appointed By Him Now Recognized In Supreme Court Ruling.

Washington, Oct. 26.—New political and administrative power for the President already known as the most powerful executive in the world was in the hands of President Coolidge today as a result of the decision of the United States Supreme Court yesterday which upheld the right of a President to oust appointees without the consent of the Senate.

Bert Haney of Oregon defied this power eighteen months ago and refused Mr. Coolidge's request for his resignation from the shipping board. The President could have ousted him summarily, it now develops.

AIM TO REFUTE STATE'S STORY

WITNESSES FROM SONORA DESERT TESTIFY.

KNOW OF FOOTPRINTS

Try To Verify Mrs. McPherson's Story Which Is Considered Myth By Prosecutors.

Los Angeles, Oct. 26.—Witnesses from the Sonora desert where Aimee Semple McPherson "returned to life" after five days' mysterious absence from her followers, were called by the defense today at the evangelists's hearing on charges of perjury and conspiracy.

The witnesses claim to have knowledge of footprints and shacks in the cactus country south of Douglass, Ariz. to verify Mrs. McPherson's famous tale of kidnapping, which the state contends is a myth.

The testimony is designated by defense counsel to refute that of state witnesses, including Deputy District Attorney Joe Ryan, who testified that exhaustive investigation failed to reveal a trace of a shack or footprints more than a few miles beyond Agua Prieta, Mexico, where Mrs. McPherson appeared after her self-related escape from kidnappers.

St. Louis Merger Is Being Voted on Today

Both Opponents And Proponents Of Measure Are Claiming Victory—City Would Be Largest In Area.

St. Louis, Oct. 26—Victory was predicted by both proponents and opponents of the merger of St. Louis with St. Louis county as voters went to the polls today to cast their ballots on the proposition.

If St. Louis county is annexed by the city it will give St. Louis over 1,000,000 population and will make St. Louis the largest city in area in the United States. Those in favor of annexation declare it will result in better police protection, better schools and more public improvements in the county. Those against annexation assert the "fetters of St. Louis municipal crookedness will entwine themselves about the county," taxes will be higher, and service will be poorer than it is now.

"Jimmie left the operating room at 1:20 today; it is now 3:45 p. m. His pulse is good and his heart in good condition. The brain pressure has been relieved and we are hoping for the best. It was a delicate and dangerous operation."

Mrs. James and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Sickels of Enid, Okla., parents of the child, are also at his bedside.

MARIE MUST COMPLETE TRIP

LISTENERS ARE DISAPPOINTED IN RADIO TALK.

WOULD "LOSE FACE"

New York Central Officials Present Queen With Birthday Cake; Sees Niagara.

New York, Oct. 26.—Embarrassed by a string of reports ordering her recall to Rumania, Queen Marie today entered Canadian territory, a part of her itinerary, aware that she must complete her journey to safeguard her political position.

Whether the reports of her alleged recall are correct, it is explained that she would "lose face" in this country and abroad if circumstances forced her to abandon her scheduled itinerary.

It was apparent last night that the continued reports of her royal husband's desire that she return to her country, had become exceedingly irritating to the royal party.

Any mention of the cabled stories was met with statements of absolute denial on the part of the queen's spokesman who described their origin to political circles antagonistic to the present royal government.

Attaches of the royal party seen last night had continued warnings of absolute silence on the situation of Her Majesty's part in the radio speech at Buffalo. Such warnings resulted in a brief and tame talk by the queen when confronted by the microphone and caused disappointment to radio listeners who hoped to hear a significant address.

The royal train arrived at Niagara Falls early today and will remain on a siding until the queen has visited the famous beauty spot of America.

Although Queen Marie's birthday is not until Friday, the New York Central celebrated it yesterday.

Railroad officials, somehow, gathered the impression that the queen would be 51 years old yesterday and went ahead with preparations for a little party in her honor. A special birthday cake was ordered. When officials notified an attendant of Queen Marie that they wished to present the cake to the queen, the attache replied:

"But today is not her birthday."

McDermott Is Again Queried About Murder

"Key Man" in Don R. Mellett Case Grilled By Prosecutor Seeking Clue to Slayers of Canton Publisher.

Canton, Ohio, Oct. 26.—Patrick McDermott, "key man" to the Don R. Mellett murder mystery, was questioned again today by authorities seeking a complete story of the young publisher's assassination.

Although McDermott is known to have given Prosecutor C. B. McClintock some information concerning the plot against Mellett, editor of the Canton Daily News, the real story is still believed untold.

McDermott was moved to the Canton workhouse from the county jail late yesterday lest he establish communication with Ben Rudner, alleged lieutenant of the assassin, awaiting trial on a first degree murder charge.

Now he is kept in solitary confinement in the same building that holds Louis Mazer, third of the trio indicted for first degree murder, where there is less danger of communication.

Herbert Spicer of Barnard Dies at 75

Funeral Services To Be Held Tomorrow Morning In Barnard and in Afternoon at Fillmore.

Herbert Spicer, 75 years old, died at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home in Barnard after a lingering illness of several months.

Short funeral services will be held at the home at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, after which the body will be taken to Fillmore and services held in the Christian Church there at 2 o'clock, followed by burial in the Fillmore cemetery. In his youth, Mr. Spicer helped to build bridges for the Northern Pacific railroad in the then Dakota territory and for the Union Pacific in Kansas. In 1893 he engaged in the general mercantile business in Fillmore and continued in it until 1904. In the following year he established a lumber yard there and continued to operate it until 1917.

Surviving are the widow; a son, Otto H. Spicer of Guilford; two daughters, Mrs. Mollie Duncan of Fillmore and Mrs. Ruth Gorsuch of Barnard; Charles E. Cole, Alexandria, La., a nephew who was reared as one of the children; one brother, C. W. Spicer, Fillmore; a sister, Miss Nellie Spicer, also of Fillmore; and six grandchildren. There are a number of other relatives, most of whom live at Fillmore.

Stewart's Washington Letter

By Charles P. Stewart.
NEA Service Writer.

Washington.—If Queen Marie of Rumania comes to your town, or her son, Prince Nicholas, or Princess Ileana, or all three, or any combination of them, and you see them, don't forget the rules laid down by Assistant Secretary of State J. Butler Wright for your behavior in the presence of royalty.

Wright is the government's supreme authority on all such problems, its socourt of last resort, its final arbiter on questions of etiquet, national and international.

Pay heed to his dictum unless you want to be regarded as a hoodlum by one of the few post-war queens, one of the few post-war princes and one of the few post-war princesses left on the job in Europe—that is to say, in Europe except when they are visiting on this side of the water.

You won't be slammed in jail if you make any bad breaks, short of bomb throwing, as you might be in Europe, but you don't want to be considered a roughneck, do you?

While royalty's in sight nobody should turn his or her back on it.

Keep your face always turned toward royalty. After royalty has turned the corner or faded over the horizon or made its exit otherwise, then you can go about your business headfirst, as usual.

Royalty can leave you as royalty pleases, but when you leave royalty, you must do it backward, bowing, or edgewise, with your head turned over your shoulder, facing royalty — or somehow so that you don't turn your back on it and walk off, as if royalty were of no consequence.

As for raiment, wear the fullest kind of full dress, depending on the hour.

In the daytime—for a man—so-called morning clothes—cutaway, gray striped pants, spats, patent leathers, high silk hat, gloves and a walking stick, preferably.

For a woman, afternoon dress—whatever that is for a woman.

Campaign Issues as Seen by Leaders of Republican and Democratic Parties

Prepared and Submitted by Republican County Committee, E. C. Curfman, Chairman.

Hawes Makes Weak Defense of Record

HIS RIDICULE FAILS AS AN ANSWER TO CHARGES.

When Harry B. Hawes, Democratic candidate for United States senator, found himself confronted by the record of election outrages while he was a member or president of the St. Louis board of police commissioners, he met an obstacle that seems certain of overwhelming his candidacy and throwing up a stone wall to block his chances of election.

The seriousness of the charges brought against the Democratic candidate by Senator George H. Williams in his Cape Girardeau speech has been emphasized by the open effort of Hawes to evade an answer or defense. His failure to provide an explanation of those notorious scandals has offered proof that he can make no defense. Instead, he attempts to pass them over by treating them as a joke.

Missouri voters are not accustomed to having their rights of franchise trampled on and then turned into a joke. Stuffing of ballot boxes, padding of registration lists and assault of voters are too serious matters to be made an object of ridicule. The right to cast an honest vote and have that vote counted is too sacred a privilege to be treated so lightly.

In referring to the charges in a speech a few days after Senator Williams had aired the Hawes police record, Hawes said: "It seems that in a Republican primary . . . . the 'governor's senator' got into an altercation and a fight; he was irritated at his failure to be nominated at that time for the position of state senator. Somebody slapped him, or kicked him, or pulled his hair, and he bawled about it considerably. A quarter of a century has passed. All of my old associates on the police board, with the exception of Rolla Wells, are dead. Practically all of the actors of that day are dead and buried. A new generation has grown up. But it seems that the incident of who hit the 'governor's senator' twenty-five years ago is to be made the leading issue; national questions are to be pushed into the background."

As a matter of fact, Senator Williams said in his Cape Girardeau speech he was reluctant to bring up the matter because it concerned himself in part. He said virtually nothing about his own experience, but did tell of the shameless manner in which reputable citizens and honest voters were treated—assulted, driven from the polls and prevented from voting in their own home precincts, while their places were taken by repeaters, thugs and ruffians.

Even though a quarter of a century has passed since the criminal occurrences of St. Louis elections, that record of corruption is still a blight on the city and on the state of Missouri. A review of that black history is serving to warn the new generation against a recurrence of such outrages. And the older generation is being reminded of its experiences to prevent the mistake of opening the way to further endangering of the rights of franchise.

As to the discussion of national issues, Hawes' charge that they are being neglected is an absurdity, for vital questions of national importance have occupied virtually all of Senator Williams' attention since opening the campaign. Hawes has had little or nothing of constructive value to offer on national subjects. His theme has been entirely criticism and ridicule.

Persons familiar with the election outrages during Hawes' term on the St. Louis police board did not expect him to make a sensible reply or defense of that record, since it is substantiated by news stories and editorials in all St. Louis newspapers and by published statements of prominent public men of that day, Republicans and Democrats alike. But Republican leaders did not expect him to make the fatal mistake of trying to turn the matter into a joke. By such a method of reply he has drawn more attention to a serious charge and has shown that he has not gone far toward changing his views on elections.

The harmony trio, Reed and Hay and Hawes, are still singing, but one sings a mellow wet, the other a deep dry, and the third a sort of falsetto, vainly trying to harmonize with the other two. They blend so badly that the audience, unable to walk out, is obviously bored and there will be no demand for return engagements.—Jefferson City Tribune.

Men and women have short memories. Former friends of Woodrow Wilson are now vociferously cheering Jum Reed and his pals.—Carthage Evening Press.

Wells Backs Hawes in Address Before Democratic Women

Williams' Charges Are Malicious and Misleading, Ex-Mayor Says.

(From St. Louis Globe-Democrat).

Former Mayor Rolla Wells praised Harry B. Hawes, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, and defended his political and official record at a meeting attended by approximately 200 women at the Jefferson Hotel Monday afternoon at which a Women's Hawes-for-Senator Club was organized.

Wells recited some of Hawes' political history and branded as "malicious and misleading" a charge being made by Senator Williams, Hawes' Republican opponent, that Williams was slugged at a polling place during an election in 1902 as the result of activities of persons identified politically with Hawes.

Spirit of Jefferson Club.

"My first attraction to Hawes was early in the year 1901," Wells said. "He was the active and predominating spirit of the Jefferson Club, the motto of which was 'Principles, Not Men.'

"The membership of the club during that year had grown to about 5000, composed of men from all walks of life—doctors, lawyers, prominent business men, bankers, mechanics and laborers, old and young.

"The membership, however, was largely made up of young men, and, what impressed me was that through the earnest activity and inspiration of Hawes, many of these young men were imbued with the spirit and ambition to take part in the conduct of our national, state and city government, and in after life they filled with credit to themselves positions of public trust

"Those of us of that period recall that the City of St. Louis was in the grasp of a corrupt city administration. Grafters predominated in our municipal assembly, and even the doors of the office of the Mayor were wide open to corrupt bosses and to those who used the administration for their selfish end to the detriment of good government and the citizens of St. Louis.

"Under the leadership of Hawes, at the April election of that year, this corrupt administration was swept from power and a new administration was inaugurated.

"About ten days after I was installed as Mayor, not having seen nor heard from Hawes, I sent for him. I said: 'Mr. Hawes, I was elected Mayor with the understanding, frequently publicly stated by me during the campaign, that if elected I would assume the office under obligation to no one, and I would be independent to and administer the office in a manner which I would consider for the best interests of the city, and not in the interest of any individual or clique. Now, Mr. Hawes, I fully recognize your leadership in the campaign, and, through you, our success can largely be attributed. In the face of this statement, I ask you frankly, what do you want?' Mr. Hawes replied: 'Mr. Mayor, I only want one thing, and that is for you to make your administration a success.'

"I want to say to those who now go back twenty-five years and attack Hawes and assert that he did not stand for law and order and good government, that their criticism is not only inopportune, but malicious and misleading.

Charge Is Unfair.

"Referring to recent charges against Hawes in connection with disturbances in one of the precincts during the primary election in 1902, I was a member of the Board of Police Commissioners at that time. An investigation was held. We found that there was no tangible evidence that warranted action on our part. We found that there were disturbances on the part of the followers of both factions. Hawes, president of the Board of Police Commissioners at the time, was no more responsible for what may or may not have happened at the precinct than I, or any other good citizen, and now, after a lapse of twenty-four years, to resurrect this precinct incident, I consider it unfair and unbecoming.

"For twenty-five years I have frequently heard Hawes express himself on the subject of the Constitution and his reverence for the great men who formulated our constitutions and the Declaration of Independence. I know the sentiments come from his heart, and, therefore, I am convinced that he would be an ideal representative of the people of Missouri in the Senate of the United States."

HEDGE COLLEGE.

The library books which were ordered from the Missouri Book Store, arrived Saturday.

The community meeting which was to be held Wednesday was postponed indefinitely as the speaker was unable to come.

The school is planning to have a little Hallowe'en party Friday afternoon and we are going to have a wiener roast.

Ralph Reed visited school two days of last week.

The quarterly examinations for the first quarter will be given Thursday and Friday of this week.

The agriculture class has mounted their bugs with white and yellow daisies which make them very attractive.

O. J. King, T. D. Hornbuckle, Mack Ulmer, U. A. Anderson and D. W. Snoderly are going to ship hogs this week.

The A government class is going to have a debate Tuesday. The topic is Resolved, that a pupil who sees another wilfully breaking a school house window should report the wrong to the teacher. Jessie Snoderly and Kenneth Ulmer are on the affirmative side and Leila Koger and Oliver Kluth on the negative side.

The first quarter's examination will be this Thursday and Friday.

The school has been receiving this week.

The agriculture class will make their note books this week.

Mack Ulmer hauled oats to Irwin Chambers' Monday.

We had our regular community meeting Friday, which was a masquerade party. Everyone seemed to have an enjoyable time. Refreshments served were sandwiches, doughnuts, apples and coffee. After the lunch, Glen Hornbuckle gave a talk on the amendments, especially the proposition No. 4.

Eating Customs of Argentines Shock Americans

Buenos Aires, Oct. 26.—Eating as it is officially done in the Argentine, stands out as one of the leading wonders of the land to the foreign visitor. Americans who have attended banquet and other functions here have been forced to loosen their belts before their hosts really got their appetites in working order.

While a New York business man steps out of the office for lunch at a nearby cafeteria, or has a bottle of milk and a sandwich brought to his desk, his Argentine brother closes up shop for two hours.

The meal begins with several varieties of "fiambres," or cold meats, soup, served from a half gallon container, a portion of fish, and then a meat order which, alone, constitutes a meal. Beer or wine is served with these dishes.

Pastry, usually served with whipped cream, fruit, cheese, and coffee, constitute the second half. Lunch is the Argentine's first meal, for he takes only coffee, bread and butter for breakfast.

Lunch is over at two o'clock. Tea, which begins at five, would make a substantial meal by itself. Sandwiches, cake, toast, and marmalade come at this time. After tea, Buenos Aires thinks of cocktails.

After lunch and tea, Buenos Aires goes to dinner, usually between eight and nine o'clock. Dinner is a matter of rather serious eating. It combines all the essentials of lunch and tea, and does fairly well on its own account. The evening meal usually ends between ten and eleven o'clock, in time for the final section of the theatre, the most popular hour in entertainment houses in the Argentine capital.

After the theatre, one eats at a cabaret, a restaurant, or at home. Restaurants are usually full most of the night, until it is time to start all over again with a piece of bread and a cup of coffee.

Finds Source for Basque, Hebrew and Japanese Races

San Sebastian, Spain, Oct. 26.—According to Dr. Yoshitomi a distinguished Japanese anthropologist who is studying the origin of the Basque race, the Basques, the Japanese and the Hebrews all belong to the same ethnical group. The former two, he declared in an interview are two of the ten lost tribes of Israel.

Paolino, the Spanish prize fighter, said Dr. Yoshitomi, is a typical specimen of the Basque race, yet he might easily be mistaken for a Japanese wrestler representative of the same age and condition as himself.

Even more remarkable than the physical resemblance between the Basques and the Japanese, said Dr. Yoshitomi is the similarity between the Japanese tongue and the language of the Basques, the origin of which has hitherto baffled all the European experts, because it does not bear the slightest resemblance to any known European language either living or dead.

In support of his theory Dr. Yoshitomi pointed out that there are numerous Hebrew communities in India, China and Japan, who plainly do not descend from the Jews of Europe, but whose origin, like that of the Japanese and Basques is much more remote.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Grains failed to fulfill the promise of early in the session and sagged to a lower close on the Chicago Board of Trade today. Trading was largely a local affair and so despite the lack of any real news, the market was easily affected.

Wheat had a firm opening but eased off later on the report that exports had not exceeded 200,000 bushels. Futures closed ¼ cent lower than yesterday. Corn followed wheat. Futures closed unchanged to ¼ cent off while cash values were unchanged.

The oats pit again failed to show any new developments. Prices followed the other pits.

Provisions closed unchanged.

CATTLE AND HOGS HIGHER. LAMBS LOWER.

Kansas City Stock Yards, Oct. 25.—Cattle receipts today were the smallest on any Monday since early August and the market showed a stronger tendency with some fairly good advances. Indications are that the big runs of grass cattle are over for this season. Short fed cattle were in much better demand while long fed steers continued scarce. Stockers and feeders and butcher cattle sold readily. Hog prices were up 10 to 15 cents, with the trade active. An advance at this season of the year is unusual. Lambs were quoted off 15 to 25 cents, and receipts were moderate. Declines elsewhere brought the break here.

Today's Receipts.

Receipts today were 29,000 cattle, 6,500 hogs and 9,000 sheep, compared with 32,000 cattle, 7,000 hogs, and 14,000 sheep a week ago, and 33,100 cattle, cattle, 5,850 hogs, and 8,500 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

Prices for killing steers ruled strong to 15 cents higher, exceptions more. Full fed cattle were scarce and with values not fairly tested the market was quoted stronger. Some choice yearling steers sold at $11.50 to $11.75. Several bunches of medium weight steers brought $10.50 to $11.25 and heavy steers up to $10.75. Short fed and grass fat steers showed the full advance and were in active demand. Some light weights brought $9 to $10.25 and strong and heavy weights $8.65 to $9.25. Grass fat steers brought $6 to $8.50. Cows and heifers were strong to 15 cents higher and in active demand. Canners brought $3.75 to $4.15 and cutters $4.25 to $4.75. Most of the grass cows sold at $5 to $6 and grass heifers $6 to $7.50. Short fed heifers sold up to $9.25. Full fed heifers were lacking. Veal calves were 50 cents lower, with light weights selling up to $12.

Stockers and Feeders.

Demand for stockers and feeders was active at strong prices. While the lighter weights were in best demand the fleshy kinds sold more readily than last week. Indications are that while receipts may be fairly liberal, the peak runs are over.

Hogs.

Hog prices were up 10 to 15 cents compared with last weeks close and only 25 cents under last weeks high point. The fact that the buying side has been unable to make any material reduction in prices in the past ten days indicates that early November prices will continue high. Today 180 to 240 pound hogs brought $13 to $13.25; 240 to 280 pounds $12.50 to $13; 280 to 325 pounds $12 to $12.50; packing sows $10 to $11; and stock hogs and pigs $12.75 to 13.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep were steady but lambs broke 25 cents. Western lambs sold at $13.50 to $13.85; native lambs $12.50 to $13.25; yearlings $9.50 to $10.50; wethers $7.25 to $8.25; ewes, $4.75 to $6.75. Feeding lambs are quoted at $12.50 to $13.25. It is only a short time until the western runs will be over.

Horses and Mules.

No important change was quoted in conditions in the horse and mule division. Demand has broadened some at steady prices.

FRIDAY GAME CRUCIAL ONE

MARYVILLE AND KIRKSVILLE TO BATTLE FOR LEADERSHIP.

BEARCATS AHEAD NOW

Next Opponents, However, Have Edge on "Dope."—May Be Battle of Field Goals.

M. I. A. A. Standings.

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Maryville	2	0	1.000
Kirksville	1	0	1.000
Springfield	1	1	.500
Cape Girardeau	0	3	.000
Warrensburg	0	0	.000

Leadership of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association will be at stake Friday when the local State Teachers College Bearcats and the Kirksville S. T. C. Bulldogs mix in football at Kirksville. At present, Maryville is leading the conference with two victories and no defeats and Kirksville has won her only game played.

One of these teams will hold first place in the M. I. A. A. after Friday, and the other will drop into third place should Warrensburg win in her season's conference curtain-raiser with Springfield at Springfield. Should Springfield win and Maryville win, the Bears will be in second place, with Kirksville third. Should both Kirksville and Springfield win, the Bears and the Bearcats would be tied for second place.

The Bearcats will go to Kirksville still sore from the bruises of the Springfield game last week. The players report that a concrete pavement is a feather bed beside the Springfield field, which is both hard and rocky.

There is a possibility that Capt. Dave Eads will be able to start for Maryville in his regular left halfback position. But there is just as great a possibility that he will be on the sidelines waiting the call which would come should the Bearcats get within field goal kicking distance.

And, speaking of field goals, there is a possibility that the game Friday may narrow down to a duel between Captain Eads and Cottle, Kirksville kicking ace. The latter has four long goals from the field to his credit so far this season, and he has not failed this year in an attempt to kick a field goal for extra point after touchdown.

The Kirksville Daily Express predicts that a kicking duel may be looked for. The Express also indicates that the Bulldogs will have more than an even chance in Friday's game. Comparative scores taken into consideration, this must be admitted. While the Maryville team defeated Cape Girardeau 14 to 10, Kirksville won from the Indians, 23 to 0. Many Bulldog gains were made through the center of the Cape line.

The Bearcats will leave Maryville Thursday morning. The game will likely start about 3 or 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, and the locals will probably return to Maryville at noon Saturday.

Coaches Lawrence and Jones of the Bearcats have not announced how many men will make the trip. So far this week they have been busy schooling their charges in plays calculated to humble the men of Coach Don Fauret at Kirksville.

Maryville Mentioned in Red Cross Courier

The current issue of the Red Cross Courier carries an article telling of the fifty Christmas bags sent to American soldiers on outpost duty by the local chapter of the Red Cross. The bags for the 1926 Christmas were sent out early in the summer and each contained two handkerchiefs and a puzzle given by local merchants and a pin cushion made by a Maryville grandmother. The bags themselves were presented by the local Royal Neighbor Lodge.

This is the fifth year that the American Red Cross has remembered American soldiers on outpost duty. Last year the Maryville bags went to a naval hospital in the Philippine Islands.

Carver Sale Good in Spite of Bad Roads

Rain and bad roads were much against the sale of purebred Poland China hogs at the Evergreen stock farm of E. E. Carver, near Guilford, yet "fair" prices were realized, according to Mr. Carver. The sale average was more than $35 per head, all spring pigs. The Carver sale was advertised in the Democrat-Forum and Tribune.

SHOULD VOTE YES ON NO. 1

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAW SHOULD BE ADOPTED.

CATECHISM PREPARED

Attention of Voters Is Called To No. 1, Which Is Act Passed By Legislature.

"Vote 'Yes' on No. 1. Vote 'No' on No. 3."

That, in short, is what the public is being asked to do on the proposals to be submitted at the election Nov. 2 by the Associated Industries of Missouri, which is conducting a campaign for No. 1 and against No. 3 throughout the state. Proposition No. 1 is known as the workmen's compensation act and was passed by the state legislature in 1925. It is being submitted under referendum petitions.

Proposal No. 3 is an initiative measure, a so-called "counterfeit" workmen's compensation act, which has never been submitted before, and is said to be the most drastic workmen's compensation measure proposed in any state. It is alleged that it has been drawn by attorneys in the interest of the damage suit system and that it would require $4,000,000 of the state's funds to put it into effect.

Won't Cost Taxpayers.

No. 1 is not to cost the taxpayers a cent in public funds. It is to be financed through 2 per cent of the premiums collected by insurance companies.

The Missouri Federation of Labor, the American Federation of Labor, both big political parties and numerous other organizations have united in the campaign for No. 1, the law having been given the support of both the employer and employe when it was passed.

The law was passed by the legislature after careful study and is said to provide for the third highest compensation of any of the state laws which have been adopted by forty-two states. Missouri is the only big industrial state without a law of this kind and one of six states without workmen's compensation laws, the other states being Arkansas, Mississippi, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Not only have virtually all large city organizations passed resolutions favorable to No. 1, but the two large farm organizations of the state have given it strong support in resolutions. Farm labor and domestic labor is not affected by the proposed law.

Catechism Prepared.

The following catechism of the workmen's compensation law has been prepared by George R. Patterson, secretary and treasurer of the Missouri State Federation of Labor:

Question No. 1. What is a workmen's compensation law?

Answer. It is a law that provides a system of compensating injured workers in industry to take the place of the old common law system.

Question No. 2. How doth workmen's compensation law differ from the common law system?

Answer. In place of the courts the case is simply and quickly determined by a commission. In place of negligence all that needs to be proven is the mere fact of injury while at work. In place of the jury the law itself fixes the amount of recovery.

Question No. 3. Why is compensation system better for the injured than the common law?

Answer. The right to compensation is sure and certain, the amount is certain, and it is received and paid without delay. Relief is also afforded to a greater number of the injured.

Question No. 4. Why is compensation better for the employer?

Answer. It costs less and it eliminates friction.

Pays More, Costs Less.

Question No. 5. How is it that compensation pays the injured more and costs the employer less?

Answer. The waste of the common law system is enormous and the greater benefits and less cost come out of the saving caused by the elimination of this waste.

Question No. 6. What compensation does the law provide for the injured?

Answer. Assuring disability, medical aid, two-thirds of the wages in installments not to exceed $20 per week with specific amounts for permanent injuries. For death, a burial benefit and 200 weeks' full wages for the dependents.

Answer. Every employer is required to insure his liability in some responsible insurance company, or else furnish proof of his financial responsibility.

Question No. 8. Has this system been tried anywhere else?

Answer. Yes, almost every country the taxpayers anything.

Question No. 7. What assurance is there that the compensation will be paid?

Answer. No. The entire expense of the law is paid by a charge on the insurance premiums paid by the employer in the world and forty-two of the United States have such laws and they are working satisfactory elsewhere.

Question No. 9. Will the change cost ployer and the state will save by the courts being relieved of this class of cases.

Who Is For This Law?

Question No. 10. Who wants this law?

Answer. The employers, the workers and all the fair-minded people of the state are being urged by the Missouri State Federation of Labor, the American Federation of Labor, the Associated Industries of Missouri, the Missouri Farmers' Association, the Missouri Farm Bureau, the Missouri Press Association and various other state-wide organizations. Practically the only opposition to the law comes from the "damage suit" lawyers whose business will be destroyed by the law.

Trial? Ho, Hum!

Aimee Semple McPherson's long drawn out trial at Los Angeles must have been quite a tsrain to her. Or maybe she's just naturally lost interest in it. Anyhow, the evangelist went sound asleep during the hearing the other day, and the camera man caught her at it.

Wabash Changing Whistles To Spare Enginemen's Ears

Have you noticed any difference lately in the tone of the whistles of the various Wabash trains passing through Maryville?

One of the trains a few days ago was drawn by an engine equipped with the new type whistle which the road is adopting. It was assigned to this division only temporarily, however.

The sound of the new whistles, it is claimed, carries further than the old ones and isn't so hard on the hearing of the engineers—to say nothing of the dear public. These are two of the main reasons, it was explained, why the new-toned whistles are being used on the main lines of the Wabash, with the probability that eventually the engines on this division will be so equipped. The new whistles sound like those on a big river steamer.

On this division, between Moberly and Omaha, it was estimated by station officials, here, the engine men must blow the whistle at least 1,700 times, counting grade crossings, stations, signal boards and switching. According to the Missouri laws, the train whistle must be sounded four times for each crossing.

Frequent sounding of the old-type whistle, shrieking, screaming, nerve-destroying, hurts the engineers' hearing, the extent of the harm being dependent upon the tone and vibration. The new-toned whistles are designed to reduce this harm to a minimum.

Railways ofter receive complaints about trains whistling so much, it was stated, but so long as people will not cross crossings cautiously and the state law prescribes whistling at crossings, the engineers are forced to "whistle them off."

The property is located at the northwest corner of Sixth and Prairie streets. The consideration was given as $200.

New Trial Asked in Conversion Case.

A motion for new trial was filed yesterday by the defendants in the suit of the Barnard State Bank against Wiley Lankford and others, charging that the latter took possession illegally of a quantity of corn. The case was tried by a jury a few days ago and a verdict returned in favor of the bank.

CANADA TO HAVE SWIM

MARATHON IN ST. LAWRENCE TO BE ARRANGED.

STARS ARE INVITED

Montreal Newspaper Is Backing Big Contest Scheduled For Next Summer—Offers Attractive Prizes.

London.—The Canadian marathon swim, which is being arranged to be held in the St. Lawrence River next summer, threatens to detract interest from channel swimming in 1927.

A movement has been started to have some of the best known personalities of channel swimming activities attend the Canadian event, either to compete or by their presence give the sim a high-class international character.

Successful channel swimmers now alive, which includes all except Captain Matthew Webb, are to be specially invited. Already overtures have been made to Georges Michel, "Bill" Burgess, who swam the channel in 1911, and Jabez Wolffe, who devoted many years of his life to the channel and failed on twenty-one attempts to attend the Canadian show in a body. Since Burgess and Wolffe are the two most popular trainers of channel swimmers, their absence from channel activities next summer would be a serious blow to the sport.

Invitations will also be sent to Ernst Vierkoetter, the German who succeeded this year, and his countryman, Otto Kemmerich, known as "the human duck" because of his webbed swimming gloves, and they may be glad of the opportunity to visit Canada and America. If they desert the channel the interest of Germany will turn to Canada.

All the American long-distance stars are wanted in Canada, particularly Gertrude Ederle and Clementine Corson. The cash prize of the St. Lawrence race may atract these girls, who are now out to make money. The winners' prize will be $5,000 and there is a special prize for the first woman to finish of $2,500. If a woman won the race it is assumed that both prizes would go to her, and either Miss Ederle or Mrs. Corson would stand an excellent chance of winning such a race. Another probable entrant is Miss Lillian Cannon of Baltimore, who failed in her channel attempts this year. She is a speedy swimmer and the St. Lawrence should suit her to perfection.

Others who may be seen at the Canadian race are Sebastian Tiraboschi, who swam the channel in 1923 and is recognized as the man who found the secret of the channel and whose course was followed by all the winners this season; Henry Sullivan, the Bostonian who stayed in the water the longest time of all the channel winners, and Charles Toth, also of Massachusetts, who also succeeded in 1923. The plan is to persuade these old-timers to start the race, on the understanding that they retire after a short swim. This would create an interesting situation, for most of them are stubborn fighters and would probably want to go on, though they are not all in their prime, especially Burgess and Wolffe. Invitations will also be sent to Madame Sion, the French woman champion, and Ishak Helmy, the popular Egyptian channeler and sportsman.

The Canadian marathon is backed by a Montreal newspaper and should be an attractive event if the ambitious plans mature. A race of forty-five kilometres, downstream, is contemplated. The chief objection to the race by seasoned channel swimmers is that it will be too easy, and develop into a mere speed contest. They point out that swimming with the current of the St. Lawrence will be like gymnasium tank work compared with the channel.

Man 'Nobody Knows" To Be in Vaudeville

New York, Oct. 26.—"Jerry Tarbot," the man nobody knows, appeared at a Marine brigade reunion here but failed to learn his identity. The veteran who lost his memory at Belleau Woods will appear this week in a New York theater in the hope same one will recognize him. He has turned down a number of vaudeville offers, refusing to capitalize the prominence his plight has brought him.

Washington Swore, Drank, and Made Love Says Writer

New York, Oct 26.—A gay, dancing, loving George Washington is given to the public in Rupert Hughes' new book, "George Washington, The Human Being and the Hero, 1732-1762."

In this tome Hughes points out that Washington was not the gallant lover nor the virtuous young man that textbooks have been pleased to picture him. He swore, drank and had love affairs just like any number of his compatriots.

In love, Washington was a dismal failure. His affairs of the heart were numerous and most all of them resulted in a proposal and a rejection.

The Washington of Parson Queems, the Cherry Tree chopping Washington, the tattle-tale Washington, is shoved to the side and we are given in his place: "In the dancing, in the love-making and in the bad spelling none of them excelled George Washington." Still again we have another rather unconventional picture in:

"The liquor was placed before the future leader of the Revolution. He drank it down. When he went to pay for it, he found he had no money. Undismayed, George drew from his bag a coon skin. This was accepted in payment for the drink and the innkeeper returned 158 rabbit skins as change.

"Whether it was the quality of the liquor or the great heap of small 'change' before him I do not know. But history records that young George felt so elated that he proceeded to treat the crowd, and kept on treating until the last rabbit skin had been returned over the bar."

In going through old manuscripts, books, etc., a number of discoveries were made. It was found that Washington's birthday is not on February 22nd, but on February 11. This is due to Pope Gregory's revision of the calendar. At the time England did not care to accept this revision as there was so much anti-Catholic sentiment so it was not until 1752, at which time it was necessary to add eleven days to bring the calendar up to the sun.

Some sidelights are thrown on the times that give us a good picture of the Virginia that Washington grew up in. Hughes says, "Perhaps indeed the baby George, who became so fervid a lover of the dance, was baptized to dance music! Many other children were. We cannot be sure that the minister who christened him was sober.

"Nothing was more common, even with the better portions," says Bishop Meade of the Virginia clergy, "than to celebrate the holy ordinance of Baptism, not admidst the prayers of the congregation, but the festivities of the feast and the dance, the minister sometimes taking a full share in all that was going on."

And so we have a new George Washington, who, in being the father of his country did not find it necessary to forego the pleasures of his day.

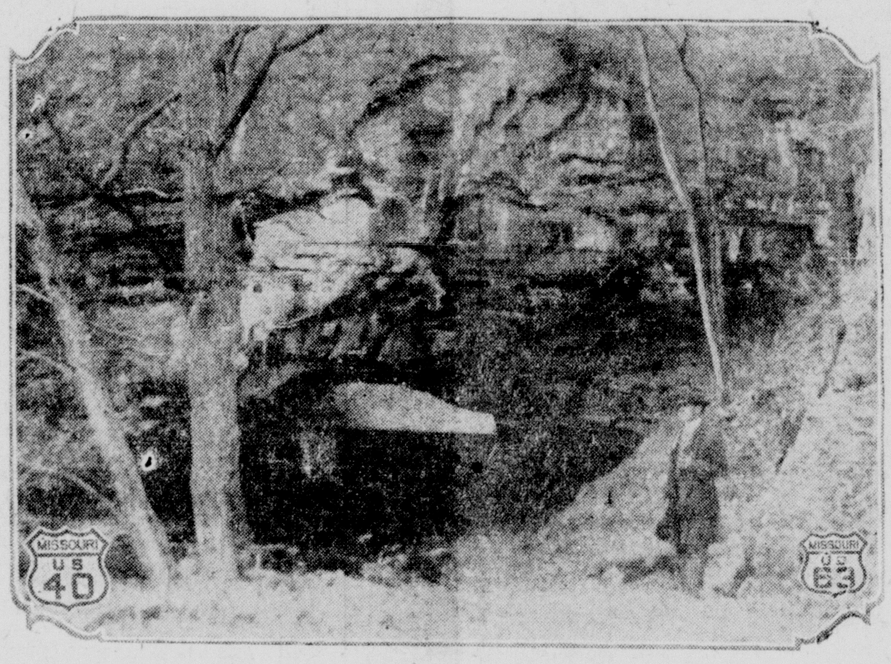
ONE OF MISSOURI'S SCENIC SPOTS NEAR THE STATE HIGHWAY SYSTEM



NATURAL BRIDGE AND PARTLY EXPLORED CAVERN NEAR COLUMBIA

Five or six miles out from the city, and easily accessible from state-federal highways No. 40 and 63 which intersect at Columbia, is found one of Missouri's wonder spots that is destined to become of considerably more than local interest. The giant forces of nature have been at work for centuries, carving with the destructive agencies of water, wind and weather, this picturesque fortress of solid rock, through which an underground stream finds its way from the deep caverns of the earth out into the sunlight. A deep chasm in the earth just beyond the natural bridge shown above, is called "The Devil's Ice-Box" and it is here that the daring explorer must make use of a boat, in order to enter the tortuous, winding cavern that extends to yet unexplored depths back into the hills. That there are unknown depths to the stream that flows through the subterranean passage, and countless chambers and side corridors caused by the erosion of the soft sandstone, is believed by the few daring ones who have ventured at considerable hazard, to explore the main channels. Strange currents of air are said to exist at certain seasons of the year, of such strength that a boat left at the entrance of the cavern, disappeared and has never been located, in spite of the fact that the stream flows out from the cavern and becomes only a small brook as it spreads out in the narrow valley. The cavern has been explored to a probable depth of six miles. Unquestionably, when this natural wonder has been authentically charted and given publicity, it will rival in interest some of the well known caverns of the Southwest Ozark section.—The Missouri Association News Service, Jefferson City, Missouri.

Pidgin English Is Passe; One Learns to Speak Mandarin

By RANDALL GOULD
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Peking.—"Hey,boy! Run top-side chop-chop, fetch good handkerchief; my no have got proper one."

In some such terms does the Peking visitor fresh from a China Treaty Port address the Peking house-boy on arrival in the capital. So does the new arrival from abroad who has cannily "crammed" from a pidgin English dictionary and who now feels prepared to meet the country on its own terms.

But instead of going to fetch the handkerchief upstairs as requested in the foregoing choice sample of pidgin, the Peking boy will stand, gaze at the inquirer, and make one of two queries.

Perhaps he will saw: "Tai-tai yao shen-ma?"Or, if long experienced with foreigners, he may politely inquire: "What do you want?"

Pidgin English, that linguistic atrocity born of foreign indolence in past years, is practically unknown in Peking and the indications are that it will speedily die out throughout China. In Peking one must learn to speak a certain amount of Chinese, or if one prefers he can easily hire servants who speak very respectable English.

Although first experience with the Far East usually brings with it a keen interest in, and even a certain admiration for, the jargon known as pidgin English, only the most condescending type of foreigner and the most syncopant type of Chinese can long endure. For it is a makeshift at best, neither English nor Chinese but partaking of both, and any Chinese or foreigner of intelligence can learn to speak more or less English or Chinese respectively in less time than it takes to acquire familiarity with pidgin.

To be more specific, the foreign visitor to Peking finds that for a total time expenditure of perhaps sixty hours, and a total outlay of about $25 U. S. currency, he can learn enough Mandarin the official Chinese language to express everything he could possibly wish to say.

Save Children From Tubucular Infection Only Hope of Curbing Disease, Says Doctor

Washington, Oct. 26.—If the fight against tuberculocis is to be successful, t will be dne largely to work among children rather than adults. This was the conclusion drawn by scientific men this morning from a technical paper entitled "The Communicability of Tuberculosis in Adults" presented before the meeting of the International Union against Tuberculosis by Professor Gaetano Ronzoni, University of Milan, Milan, Italy. Professor Ronzoni organized the first tuberculosis clinic in Italy and has spent his life in the study of the disease.

"The fundamental results that can be drawn from our knowledge," stated Professor Ronzoni, "are that preventive measures against tuberculosis infection should be applied principally in infancy, because this is the most vulnerable age. Also, protection at this period is considered a most practical means of preventing disease in the adult. The most effective defensive measure at present available, against disease in later life, should not allow us to overlook the fact that new infection, among adults can occur from outside the body, and defense measures against these should also be maintained.

This is the first time since 1908, that the International Union Against Tuberculosis was convened in America. The last meeting was held at Lausanne, Switzerland.

The Union meets every two years for the purpose of effecting an exchange of knowledge and methods in the prevention and control of tuberculosis.

Fifty-eight foreign medical men, from twenty-two countries, are in attendance, and more than five hundred physicians and public workers from every section of the United States have gathered to attend the sessions closing Saturday.

Free Love More Satisfactory Than Old Way Says Famous Italian Woman

Rome, Oct. 26.—"Free love is the most sensible form of marriage," said Lina Cavalieri, famous Italian diva, once known as "the most beautiful woman in the world" in an exclusive interview with the United Press. She said she preferred French love customs to anglo-saxon.

"Women should not be the slaves of marriage without love. Fidelity in marriage is a fine thing if it is spontaneous and not the bond of custom. It is every woman's right to seek happiness and be free. Morally, women have the same rights as men."

"What do you think of the steps women have recently made in sports?" the celebrated star was asked.

"It is a fine thing for women to go into sports of almost any kind. But she should not overdo it. Although woman is man's equal intellectually, it does not follow that she can really compete with him physically in spite of some example to the contrary. A woman should be woman, preserve her effeminacy, grace, and charm of manner, and not try to be an athlete.

"Italian women can succeed in business and politics, and only need to overcome the feeling of dependency on man caused by the moral, intellectual, and social shackles she has had to bear for many ages. The modern Italian woman, like the American, has struck out on a new path for freedom.

"The Italian girl has changed much since after the war. Fifteen years ago a girl would not be allowed to go out of the house unless accompanied by her father or older brother. Today the girls feel no need of being escorted, going alone or with friends everywhere. They go to work and many are self-supporting. They are on a higher spiritual plane, having a greater responsibility and a higher opinion of themselves.

"Going into business is a fine thing for women. It is the only way to make her man's equal and command his full respect. It is a great moral satisfaction, helps the country economically, and keeps peace in the family."

Future Dirigibles Will Be Larger

Detroit, Oct. 26.—Dirigibles of the future will be twice the size of the Los Angeles and will be used chiefly for transportation over large bodies of water, Rear Admiral William A. Moffat, head of the naval aeronautical bureau said upon the completion of the giant craft's trip from Detroit to New Jersey.

"It is not quite so probable that the dirigible will replace the train for overland transportation," he said "because at present it is not fast enough and cannot carry so much pay load.

"But over water it is far ahead of the liner, and it is entirely possible that within the near future ships twice the size of the Los Angeles will be carrying 100 passengers or more to Europe in about two and one-half days."

Chaperone Keeping Young Coolidge in

President's Son Does Not Attend Smith College Dances Now Like He Did Last Year.

Washington, Oct. 26.—John Coolidge's new chaperon has deprived Smith College girls of a social treat—dancing with the president's son.

Time was when the first lad of the land made the short trip from Amherst to this city rather often to take in Smith dances, according to students here. But John hasn't been here lately—and the flappers that fluttered ambitiously about him last year are wondering why.

Now that Col. Edward Starling, White House sleuth, has become John's body guard, Smith students have just about given up hopes of ever charlestoning again with the American social equivalent of the Prince of Wales.

Not that John is a collegiate shiek falthough he does wear his hair slicked back but that he is a "bashful boy" accounts for his popularity here, according to Smith girls who know him best.

"John isn't a bit bashful after you get to know him," Miss Elizabeth Spear, Smith student, confined to the United Press. She has lived many years in Northampton, John's hometown, and knew him even before she met him at various college functions.

"He seems bashful and shy to most people when they meet him for the first time," Miss Spear went on, "but honestly, after you have become well acquainted with him he is a jolly good fellow. He seems silent, too, at first, but he is quite a talker among close friends."

Alleges Stockyards Trader Violated Law

First Case Of Its Kind Started In Federal Court When Man Cited For Not Registering.

East St. Louis, Oct. 26.—The first case of its kind in America has been started in Federal Court for the Eastern District of Illinois here by United States Attorney Glen B. Jones, a trader at the National Stock Yards.

Jones is cited for violation of Section 303 of the Packers and Stockyards act which is administered by the Department of Agriculture. This section relates to the registry with the Federal government of all traders before they operate in any stockyards.

Violation of the act is punishable by a fine of $500 for a first transaction and $25 for each additional transaction. Backer says the business completed by Jones in the past two months will make him liable to a fine of $5,000.

Because this is the first violation of its kind to be brought to the attention of authorities, special papers had to be arranged by the Department of Agriculture which had no blanks for the preparation of the case.

BLUE LAWS COME FIRST

WORLD COURT AND FOREIGN DEBT OVERSHADOWED.

IN SENATORIAL FIGHT

Washington More Interested In What Can Be Done On Sunday And In Cellars.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 26.—Sunday "blue laws" and prohibition have crowded the world court, the foreign debt question and such sectional matters as tarriff on shingles, from the spotlight in Washington's senatorial campaign.

Wesley L. Jones, Republican, a dry advocate who is seeking his fourth term in the senate, continues to brand A. Scott Bullitt, his Democratic opponent as a "wet." Bullitt not only favors modification of the 18th amendment but his candidacy is supported by brewers, distillers and saloon interests.

Denying the "wet" accusation, Bullitt has insisted that federal enforcement on states rights is robbing Washington of many thousands of dollars in fines imposed on liquor law violaters.

Federal prohibition agents have often been brutal in their treatment of citizens, Bullitt declares.

"I am opposed to Senator Jone's policy of bringing federal agents into every community," he asserted, "and his policy of constant extension of federal bureaus to regulate the personal conduct of citizens."

Charges that Bullitt is attempting to hedge on the liquor question in contrast to his own clear stand against modification, are made by the Republican senator.

While the Jones-Bullitt battle wages around prohibition and the regulation of the seventh day, J. L. Freeman, senatorial candidate of the Farm-Labor party, is taking advantage of the opportunity to boost his own stock.

His opponents are floundering for an issue, he declared, ignoring the fact that the great measures which concern the people are economic.

Woman Sues Another for Copping Husband

Chicago Wife Alleges Milliner Captured Her Husband's Affections And Asks $100,000.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—A 38-year-old wife was suing a 50 year old spinster for the alienation of the affections of a 38 year old husband here today. Mrs. Irma Gladder, sorrowfully admits that Miss Edith Maier, head designer for a millinery company has captured her husband's affections and asks $100,000 heart balm.

Miss Maier admits having been friendly with Walter Gladder, the husband, but says her interest in him is "purely motherly."

Mrs. Glader alleges her husband has presented Miss Maier with costly gifts for the past year and half, and said he furnished a sumptuous apartment for her, as well as oriental rugs, jewelrw and a costly roadster.

The Gladers have been married for nine years. He is prominent in club circles.

Believes Woman Will Live in World of Own

New York Rabbi Says "New Woman" Experimental So Far And "Inferiority Complex" Will Soon Pass.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Women still live in a "man's world" and still think under the influence of male psychology, but they will develop a psychological viewpoint of their own soon, Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, New York, told a forum meeting here. The "new woman" is experimental so far, but eventually she will create a "world of her own," he said. In the past man was superior because he said so himself, the rabbi told one questioner.

AERIAL TRAIL BLAZING

Among pioneers of all times, the name of Alen J. Cobham may rank high. He has made notable trails in the air.

Cobham has just returned from his great flight to Australia, a trifle of some 28,000 miles, wihout mishap. Before that he flew from England to Capetown and back and to India and back, and while in India he soared over the Himalayas. He has never had an accident. Perhaps he should stop now.

More remarkable even than this pilot's record is the performance of his airplane. He used the same plane as on his former trips, and it has now covered 125,000 miles. It is a mighty good automobile that will do so well. His engine, fitted to the plane before the Capetown flight, has recovered about two-thirds of that distance. And they used to say that an airplane engine was good for less than 100 hours' running.

PROHIBITION AND PROSPERITY.

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, whose pithy comments on public issues are always breaking into print, is credited with saying that prohibition, as it stands today, is worth a billion dollars a year to the country.

Well, why not? There is far less liquor consumed than in the days of the licensed saloon, despite a surprising amount of comment to the contrary. If over-enthusiastic wets would take a sober turn through the extensive dry regions of the country, and the dry parts of their own regions, they would see things in better perspective.

Granted, the liquor is worse and costs more. But there is far less drunk. How much less would probably seem incredible to any honest wet if the precise figures were presented, whether by a statistical gentleman like Prof. Fisher or by an ordinarily intelligent citizen rambling around without bias and recording his general impressions.

So important is this widely ignored fact that we venture to make a suggestion, which may be hooted at by deluded wet partisans, but will not necessarily be invalidated by the hooting:

The extensive prosperity prevailing in this country, evident to all the world, is due more to prohibition than to any other factor, resulting from the immense saving of money formerly spent for liquor, and from the increased efficiency of sober citizens.

It is time that, along with discussions of the moral effects of prohibition, there were more attention paid to its economic effects.

ITALIAN EXILES

What little gain of population France has is mostly Italian. Of 207,000 Italians who emigrated last year, 174,000 went to France.

Formerly they would have come to America; now the quota system keeps them out, and France, close by, welcomes them. There they settle largely in areas which are in danger of depopulation, in a congenial climate and among a congenial race, and often find personal prosperity while contributing to the prosperity of France.

Mussolini rages at it. He wants those Italians to stay at home and work for "the new Italy." But they cross the border because they cannot endure Italian tyranny. It is Mussolini who drives them out. Having democratic principles, they seek freedom in exile, like the Germans who came to America in the middle of the last century.

Many scatter forth to more distant lands. More would go if they could get away. They are patriots who want to see Italy made great, but they believe that Italians who acquiesce in the Fascist regime are paying too great a price for greatness. Also that no greatness built on the will of one man can endure.

A LIBRARY VANDAL.

Kansas is reported to be afflicted with a fundamentalist with a "Carrie Nation" complex. At any rate, this fanatic, man or woman, has taken to visiting public libraries and destroying books. The librarian at the Kansas City Public Library recently discovered two copies of Darwin's "The Ascent of Man" which had been torn from cover to cover. A number of other books about evolution have been badly mutilated. On the fly of leaves of others Bible quotations have been scribbled.

Steps have already been taken to prevent any further book destruction if possible and to capture the elusive destroyer. They include, of course, closing the non-fiction shelves to all but responsible readers and placing a guard over the threatened books. This means inconvenience to a good many honest readers as well as to the librarians.

In the meantime, interest in the subject of evolution probably will be stimulated in Kansas communities.

And there are some people who still maintain that there are no such things as equinoctial storms.

Pugilistic contests show how all the world loves a fight—when somebody else does the fighting.

FINISH THE FIGHT ON NO. 4.

Whether proposition No. 4 is removed from the ballot in Missouri seems of slight consequence at the present time. The move to submit such a proposal as repeal of the state's liquor enforcement laws has served the important purpose of stimulating to action the law-abiding citizen who is concerned with the welfare and good name of the state. It has served, also, to expose the weakness of the interests who have allowed themselves to go so far as to advocate a repudiation by Missouri of a virtual contract with the federal government.

That the proposal would be defeated overwhelmingly has been evident from the moment it was put forward. It is just as well now to let the fight go on to a decisive finish. What the forces behind proposition No. 4 need is a good, sound licking. They will get it on November 2. The medicine will do them good, and it will prove wholesome, as well, for the nullificationists in other parts of the country.

There are, without doubt, two sides to the prohibition question. But the advocates of proposition No. 4 haven't found the other side. That fact ought to be made plain, beyond the possibility of any question, by the vote next month.—Kansas City Star.

How Old Is Alexander?

Grover Cleveland Alexander is called an old man at 39. He speaks of himself as old. He was without a peer in baseball before the war. He won a National League pennant 11 years ago. Grown men knew in their youth Alexander the Great.

Yet Alexander is not old. He is two years younger than Walter Johnson, who at 39 won a world series for Washington. He is younger than Walter J. Travis was when that intrepid oldster for the first time brought the British amateur golf trophy to America. He is 12 years younger than the celebrated "Iron Man" McGinnity was when that dauntless athlete was still good enough to win a championship for a Mississippi minor league team. The redoubtable Cy Young, 22 years in major-league baseball, was in full flight at 40.

We want to reassure Alexander. He is not old. Magnificent as his past is a no less glorious future lies before him. We ask him to recall that Gounod was 80 when he wrote the opera 'Faust'. 'Pop' Hindenburg was 65 when he won the battle of Tannenburg. Russell Sage was 45 when he crawled down from a bookkeeper's stool and began his financial career. De Morgan began his career as a British novelist at 65. How they all would laugh to hear this 39-year-old man call himself old!

Alexander never pitched better ball than he did in the final game at New York. He was never more sure of himself, never more master than he was in that nerve-wrecking crisis. He was still Alexander the Great, his luster undimmed by the years, his arm unpalsied by time. The Cardinals are a young team and Alexander is the greatest kid of them all.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

October is a poor campaign month. How can an orator make folks take a gloomy view of things or turn to him as the only hope for relief when pumpkins are rounding into form, cider is on tap and hog-killing time just around the corner?—Paris Appeal.

BARBS

Americans should have a king and queen of their own, says a British journalist, writing of Marie's reception. As we go to press we can think of only about 80 or 90 that we do have, though they don't all wear ermine.

Detective or no detective, president's son or no president's son, Miss Trumbull, daughter of the Connecticut governor, bursts right out that she is too young to tie herself down. So there!

Do we like peaches and cream? Well, we don't mind the cream, but the very word peaches doesn't even agree with us very well any more.

Now we know what the jazz orchestra is for. It's to enliven the waiter when he's putting down the particulars.

Headlines that tell the story: AMERICA IS NICE, SAYS EMMA GOLDMAN.

The American Legion is going to Paris for its 1927 convention. They fixed things up once; maybe they can do it again.

Headlines you never see: FRESHMAN LAUDS KINDLY SOPHS AT CLASS MEETING.

Thrift week comes in January. Too late! Too late!

Building for the Future

Part One of the Federal Oil Conservation Board's report to the President makes a preliminary statement of the nation's oil resources, and suggests directions in which the industry can contribute to assured future supplies

One of the important suggestions on this program is—"Systematic research and experiment in new methods." To the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) this suggestion means "carry on."

Systematic research and experiment in new methods have always been a part of the program of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Day after day—for years—the patient work of scientific experts has gone on in the quiet of its laboratories. Chemists and other men of science on the staff of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) have devoted their lives to research.

The Company has backed them with all the resources at its command, providing proper equipment and facilitating their investigations in every possible way.

The average motorist in the Middle West has known little of the men or their work. But they have helped him in ways he does not suspect.

It is due to their work in developing processes for producing gasoline by cracking, for instance, that he is able to buy gasoline anywhere in the Middle West—any time—at a price he can afford to pay.

This one achievement of the scientific staff of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has intimately affected the lives of the thirty million people of the Middle West.

Hundreds of other important discoveries and improvements—far-reaching in their results—have been made in the laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The men responsible for them have remained, for the most part, unknown to the public. They have been content to serve mankind in the name of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) quietly making their contribution to progress.

Research and experiment are going on now in the laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). New discoveries and new developments are being made constantly.

The suggestion of the Federal Oil Conservation Board is virtually an endorsement of the policy of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and an encouragement to "carry on."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) will continue its work of building for the future, holding aloft the torch of progress, serving with all the knowledge and skill at its command the thirty million people of the Middle West.

Bowling Green—Miss Virginia Sue Campbell, of this city, was chosen president of Butler Hall at Lindenwood College, St. Charles.

Charleston—The Junior Chamber of Commerce in this city has enrolled twenty members and plans several civic improvement projects.

A Lot of Ex-Cyclops

Senator James A. Reed faced a lot of ex-cyclops when Hugh "Pat" Emmons appeared at a witness in Reed's Chicago investigation of Indiana Ku Klux Klan politics. Emmons is pictured on the stand. He told of bolting the original klan organization in Indiana, of helping set up a rival body, the "Valley Tabernacle Association," and of being offered $10,000 to rejoin the klan and support James E. Watson for senator. "The good die young," he said he was told when he declined.

Indiana "Boss"

Clyde Walb, chairman of the central Republican executive committee in Indiana and reputed political "boss," was the first witness called by Senator James A. Reed in his investigation of Indiana's primaries. This shows Wab on the witness shand in Chicago.

RED CROSS NOTES.

In a report wired to National Headquarters from the Florida storm area, Henry M. Baker, director of Disaster Relief for the American Red Cross, cites figures which show the enormous volume of work being accomplished for hurricane sufferers by the Red Cross organization.

During the past week, Mr. Baker states, medical and nursing service was extended to 113,000 persons. This figure includes inoculation against typhoid. Food was distributed to 6,500 persons and clothing to 4,650 persons and repair jobs were approved for 12,330 persons and 50 additional tents were provided to house 2,000 persons. In the Miami area alone during this one week, the Missing Persons Bureau of the Red Cross handled 3,000 inquiries, making a grand total of 35,000. Latest statistics show a total of 370 dead, 6,375 injured and 17,799 families in urgent need of Red Cross aid.

FAVORS NEW ROAD BONDS

HUGH STEPHENS ENDORSES $100,000,000 PROPOSAL.

WOULD SPEED WORK

A Mistake to Slow Down, Says Commission Members.—No Increase in Taxes, He Declares.

Jefferson City, Oct. 26.—A proposal that Missouri issue an additional $100,000,000 in road bonds to complete the State highway system within the next three or four years, instead of depending upon the slower pay-as-you-go method after this year, is indorsed by Hugh Stephens of Jefferson City, a member of the State Highway Commission, in a letter to the Higginsville Chamber of Commerce.

The Higginsville organization recently sent to members of the commission copies of a resolution it had adopted urging an additional bond issue of at least $100,000,000 to expedite completion of the 7640-mile highway system, and give the State the immediate benefits of a completed road system.

Stephens replied that he was in full accord with the suggestion, and stated that if similar sentiment was developed in other sections of the State, "I anticipate that a proposal of this nature will be presented to the people for their votes."

No Extra Tax Needed.

He said that Missouri would be able to issue at least $100,000,000 in road bonds without any increase in the automobile license fee or gasoline tax, from which the road program is financed, and complete its program almost twice as fast as under the pay-as-you-go method.

"The impression has been created in some sections that the State Highway Commission has opposed further bond issues," Stephens stated in the letter. "This is a mistake. Last April the commission adopted a resolution, the purpose of which was to inform the public that under existing laws road building must and would proceed on the pay-as-you-go plan. We cannot change that policy without the authority of the voters and the adoption of other plans."

The State road bond issue of $60,000,000 under which work is being carried forward, was passed in 1920. The State has sold $55,000,000 of this issue, and the last $5,000,000 in bonds will be sold next year. The commission stated that beginning next year the construction program will be on the pay-as-you-go plan, from the revenue derived from automobile license fees and the gasoline tax. This will result in a decided reduction in the annual construction program. The commission's engineers have estimated that under this plan the system can be completed about 1934.

"To my mind it would be a mistake to slow down after this year and reduce the number of miles a year when the job is only half finished," Stephens stated. "It will mean a loss of efficiency, additional ultimate cost, and I believe the people of Missouri favor a speeding up rather than a slowing down of road construction."

Delay Under Present Law.

Stephens recalled that about four years had elapsed since the State began active construction of the system, and that only one principal route, Federal Highway No. 40, the St. Louis-Kansas City "airline" was near completion. He said that if the pay-as-you-go method had to be used it would require eight years or more to finish the system. He pointed out that the present State law required work to be carried on simultaneously in all counties, which delayed completion of the principal routes.

He said the roads were advertising Missouri more than any other thing ever done by the State.

"The people have had a taste of good highways and they want more as rapidly as they can get them," he said. "As a commission, of course, we can only build as we are given authority, but no great building or railroad or other enterprise was ever secured by building the foundation with bonds and the remainder out of revenues. I do not believe our people can be properly served in the building of highways in that manner."

Likes Upholstered Nest for Her Eggs

Flint, Mich., Oct. 26.—"Roundy," a hen owned by Mrs. Daniel Grimes, has acquired a luxury complex. She insists upon nestling in upholstery.

The hen flew into the Grimes sedan, adopted it as her home and proceeded to nest on the upholstery of the back seat. Evicted by force, the hen followed Mrs. Grimes into the house and went into the living room where she deposited an egg on the davenport. Since then each time she felt the "egg urge" she would come to the door and cackle until admitted. "Roundy" has laid an average of 23 eggs a month on the davenport since last February.

Political Leaders Are Keeping Quiet

Election Too Close To Comment On Proposed Modification Of Commerce Barriers.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Pronouncement of international bankers for modification of commerce barriers between nations has caused a sensation among political leaders of both parties.

With congressional election less than two weeks away there was given speculation here as to how this unexpected accord would be used by the Democratic and Republican candidates in the closing days of the campaign.

Not a single Democratic, Republican or Independent leader at the capitol would comment publicly upon what they privately discussed as the most sensational devolpment of the campaign.

The statement of J. P. Morgan and other international banking agencies here and abroad for relinquishing tariff and other trade barriers (later modified to apply particularly to European countries) was followed by a statement from Thomas Lamont, head of Morgan and Company for debt cancellation.

Democrats gradually accepted the tariff manifesto as an indication of sympathy for Democratic program tarriff reduction. Republicans were divided, some siding with President Coolidge against tampering with the tariff, others expressing fear that the program would lead to "free trade" and others (members of the farm group) fearing to express sentiment for fear of being caught siding with Wall Street bankers.

Warrensburg—This city is planning for the poultry show of the Johnson County Poultry Association to be held here Nov. 8-12.

Try to Make Polo a Western Sport

"Move Polo West" Is Slogan Of Enthusiasts Who Are Promoting That Pastime.

Ponca City, Okla., Oct. 26.—Definite strides are being taken toward making polo a western sport and preventing a monopoly of its benefits and pleasures by the East.

Visitors and entrants at the Ponca City annual invitation polo tournament, just been completed here, said the tournament was the largest ever held in the middle west.

"Move Polo West," has become the slogan of polo fans here.

One of the largest oil concerns in the middle west has taken the game and put it within reach of its employees as a physical "conditioner and dispositioner." E. W. Marland, president of the Marland Oil Company has constructed and sodded a playing field, spent thousands on ponies and opened wide the doors of his stables to members of his staff who are not able to own their own string.

"An investment in health," he says. "Rosy cheeks pay big dividends."

Ponca City, an Oklahoma town of 15,000 people, has 30 polo players, as many, it is said as Kansas City and St. Louis have combined.

It is a sure indication, Players aver, that the game is a "comer" in the West. The idea of "polo in business" will grow they say.

The VANITY CASE

by Carolyn Wells

IFA FICTION

© 1926 by G·P·PUTNAM SONS

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

MRS. PRENTISS sees lights mysteriously appear and disappear in the HEATH household next door one night and the next day Harbor Gardens, Long Island, is agog with the murder of MYRA HEATH and the disappearance of her husband, PERRY.

House guests of the Heaths are LAWRENCE INMAN, heir to Myra's fortune, and BUNNY MOORE, vivacious, golden-haired, to whom suspicion points because of her refusal to answer questions.

Myra Heath was peculiar: She never used cosmetics, never wore colors. She had a mania for collecting glass, and it was a rare old whisky bottle from her collection that the murderer used to kill her. Candles were burning at her head and feet and nearby was a card marked, "The Work of Perry Heath." Strangest of all, she was heavily made up and garbed in gay colors.

The peculiar thing about Heath's disappearance is that all the windows and doors had been locked on the inside the night before and were found that way in the morning. Finger prints of Bunny Moore and Inman were found on the bottle.

At the Country Club the murder is discussed by SAM ANDERSON, Heath's rival for the club presidency; AL CUNNINGHAM, who is trying to solve the crime, and others. Some believe Heath the murderer. Anderson disagrees. TODHUNTER BUCK, nephew of Mrs. Prentiss and in love with Bunny, suggests to Cunningham that Heath also may have been murdered.

EMMA, a waitress in the Heath home, tells of Seeing Bunny ascend the stairs about the time of the murder, carrying her vanity case. Later Bunny is amazed to get a phone call from Perry Heath telling her Inman is guilty. Bunny breaks down and faints under a grilling by DETECTIVE MOTT, who makes up his mind that she is guilty. Inman confides to Buck that he saw Bunny creeping the stairs after the murder, and Mott, questions all the servants and tells them to keep silent.

Cunningham gets a note from Anderson and goes to his house where Perry Heath suddenly appears out of the night and begins to talk.

Anderson invites Cunningham to his house and there, while waiting for his host, Cunningham is suddenly confronted by Perry Heath, who disappears as mysteriously as he had appeared. Shortly afterward, Anderson comes in, and he reproahes Cunningham for letting Heath get away.

TODHUNTER BUCK, who is in love with Bunny, is a witness to a nocturnal meeting between the girl and Heath. He tries to get Bunny to explain and when she refuses he calls in his friend, STEVE TRUITT, a famous detective. Bunny tells Truitt she had gone downstairs the night of the murder and seen Myra Heath, not yet cold in death, and Inman peeping from behind a curtain.

Truitt questions Inman and then, inspecting the Heath home, discovers something peculiar about a window. He then rejoins Buck and the latter's aunt, MRS. PRENTISS.

Truitt arranges for a meeting with Sam Anderson. He then takes Buck with him and enters the Heath Bungalow by a French window, saying Heath will come in shortly.

Heath does, and Truitt arrests him. On the way to the station, Heath asks permission to get some letters from his locker at the club house.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLVI.

The three went inside, and as it was late almost no one was about. A few sleepy servants were in attendance, and a few more sleepy members were here and thr.

"I'll just go in the locker room," said Heath, "you chaps won't be allowed in, of course, but you can sit right here and wait for me. I give you my word of honor, I will come straight back here to you, within five minutes."

Something in his voice rang true, and Steve said, "All right, old man, go ahead. We'll wait here."

A moment later, Sam Anderson came from the locker room.

"Who do you suppose is in there?" he whispered, looking greatly excited, "Perry Heath!"

"Yes, we know it," said Tod. "Hush, don't tell everybody! Thought you had a party on."

"I did, but it broke up a while ago, and we came over here to wind it up. The other chaps have just gone home, and I went in the locker room a minute, and I saw Heath. What's he doing here?"

"You go along home, Mr. Anderson," said Truitt, "and please don't say anything about Heath till morning. We're looking after him all right."

"Very well. I've no desire to mix in, but I think you have put one over our detective, Al Cunningham."

He went off and the others waited for Heath.

But after waiting fifteen minutes and not seeing him, Tod asked a servant to go into the locker room and hurry him up.

The servant returned with the word, "There isn't anybody in there, Mr. Buck."

"Must be," and Tod strode in there himself.

But there was not one there, a window was open, but it gave one a rather long drop to the ground, and Tod wondered if Perry had taken that chance of a broken leg.

He went back and reported to Truitt, and that worthy stared at him.

"Sure, Toddy?"

"Sure, Steve."

"Then, I don't believe he took out the window, I believe he gave us the slip while we were talking to Mr. Anderson—"

"Oh, he couldn't have! I was looking about—"

"No, you weren't, you were looking directly at Anderson, and so was I. Depend upon it, old man, that's when the slippery Heath gave us the go by."

"It seems incredible—"

"Incredible or not, it happened. Come on, let's go home and go to bed."

"Well, you seem contented to lie down on the job."

"My dear boy, what can I do? What can either of us do, tonight?"

This was true enough, yet it was with a sense of disappointment at his friend's failure that Toddy Buck went to bed.

He slept late in the morning to make up for his vigils, and when he came hurrying down to a late breakfast, he found Steve Truitt there, and smiling broadly as he sat reading an official communication.

"It's from Mott," he said, succinctly, "and though he doesn't say so, I can't help feeling that friend Mott is a bit glad that the upstart detective has been outwitted by the clever criminal."

"Meaning?" asked Buck, his mouth full of toast and jam.

For answer, Truitt passed over the missive.

It was to the effect that police headquarters had received a note from Perry Heath.

"There is no doubt of its genuineness," the letter said, "for we have had it verified by several who know his writing."

"The note," they were further informed, "tells us that Perry Heath confesses to the murder of his wife, Myra. He gives no reason for the deed, but states that he is now so overcome with remorse and grief that he has committed suicide. He says it will be useless to hunt for his body for it can never be found, but he says by the time we read the letter he sent, he will be a dead man. Says he prefers that death to capital punishment, and that he could not continue to live now that his eyes are open to the heinousness of his crime."

"Well, what do you think of that?" exclaimed Toddy Buck, returning to his interrupted breakfast.

"I think Heath is a very clever man," returned Steve, "though it doesn't require a very fine brand of cleverness to pull the wool over Mr. Mott's blinking eyes."

"Don't you believe it?" asked Tod.

"That Heath is a suicide? I do not."

"Where is he, then?"

"You ask that question! Oh, Toddy, and it was you who let him get away!"

"I did nothing of the sort! You allowed him to go into the club locker room and of course he jumped out of the window."

"Then we must look for him in some hospital for certainly he must have one or two broken legs."

"Oh, you're impossible this morning, Steve. Don't you mind Mott's crowing over you?"

"He crows best who crows last."

"Oh, then you have got something up your sleeve! I thought as much!"

"No, you didn't think half as much. You distrusted, or mistrusted your old pal—that's what you did. And here comes Miss Moore, as ever was! Do you know, fair lady, you started the whole ball rolling when you said putty? I doubt if I ever should have found that puttied pane otherwise. How did you know?"

"I don't know how I knew. I just stumbled on it as I was looking about."

Truitt then told her the whole story of the night before, and gave her permission to tell Mrs. Prentiss about it all, when opportunity should serve. For their good hostess could never leave her morning housekeeping for detective work or any other outside interest.

Tod having finished the jampot, turned to Truitt, and at once the detective's face became grave.

"Come on, boy, and we'll go and ring up the curtain on the last act. Do you want to go, Miss Moore? Do you want to see the arrest of the man who killed your friend?"

"No, oh, no!" and Bunny dropped her face in her hands. "And when you come back, don't tell me any more than you have to."

"Do you know—Miss Moore?" said Truitt, "do you know the secret?"

"No, I don't. But from some hints I have had from Myra, and some bits of talk I overheard, I have a sort of idea—but—no, I don't know Perry Heath's secret."

MOTHER OF SEVEN CHILDREN

Helped in Caring for them by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Glasgow, Ky.—"I am the mother of seven children, the eldest being only 12 years, and I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped to pull me through the roughest places of my married life. At one time I was so downhearted that life was a misery. A friend in Indianapolis, Indiana, told me of the Vegetable Compound, and after taking a few bottles of it I became myself again and it was a pleasure to do my housework and gardening. Since then I always use your medicine when I feel weak from overwork and it straightens me out." —MRS. MELISSA BARDERS, Route 2, care of O. F. Steenbergen, Glasgow, Ky.

New Orleans, La.—"I could not do a thing after my first boy was born. I was so weak, I had no appetite, lost weight and was not able to do my work. EXERCISES TO MAKE A LIFE VIGOROUS

People Cannot Be Well and Strong Unless They Keep Their Muscles, Heart and Breathing Apparatus in Good Order.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Every nation has its own way of doing things. I am rejoiced to see what Czechoslovakia, the modern name for Bohemia, is undertaking in the way of physical education. That country may be poor in national wealth of the ordinary kind, but when it has good health and sound bodies for all its people, it will show its riches in a much more important way than by bank balances.

All over the country there have been organized what they call "Sokols." The membership approaches a million. The organization is particularly popular with the young women members who enter enthusiastically into the drills and gymnastic performances.

I saw a photograph showing 14,000 Czech maidens in a marvelous exhibition of the physical drilling they have learned in the Sokols. The report said: "The rhythm was supplied by four great orchestras, and the grace, smartness, beauty and precision of the varied, difficult and complicated movements aroused the unbounded enthusiasm of the multitude of spectators."

I don't know any Slavic, but I wonder if the word "sokol" has not the same origin as the Latin "socio," meaning to unite or associate together for the common good. Apparently the Sokols are co-operative organizations.

When the nation determines to bring together great bodies of men and women, there is an opportunity to give instruction in all things making for individual and community welfare. To my mind, health and sanitation, proper eating and correct physical habits, are things in which instruction should be given every citizen.

We have mass meetings for everything else under the sun, why not for health? Community health is vastly more important than community singing—and I have nothing but praise for that, too. Schools for health are of more lasting benefit than writing schools.

You need no gymnasium in order to have a place and means of exercising. When you are properly instructed in a few setting-up exercises you can take them wherever you are, just exactly as well as in the finest physical training establishment in the world.

You cannot be well and strong unless you keep your muscles, heart and breathing apparatus in good order. You cannot keep them right unless you exercise. Take a few lessons and be ready for a life-time of vigor.

If you confine yourself to one exercise, let it be deep breathing. If you will practice taking deep breaths a few minutes every morning, it will do more to improve your digestion and do more to increase your fund of health than anything else I can suggest. It is essential that the full lung capacity be developed. Too many people go through life with undeveloped chests. While deep breathing may not be considered an exercise in the ordinary sense, it certainly is an exercise which will make for the development of the muscles of the entire body.

Appendix. Q.—Some time ago I had a severe pain in the right side, and after it subsided it left my entire stomach sore for weeks afterward. I have been told that I have chronic appendicitis and adhesions. Is this dangerous and should I have the appendix removed?

A.—An operation is probably inevitable, sooner or later. Your doctor should be the one to advise you, since he is naturally familiar with your particular case.

K. G. Q.—What causes liver spots and what will clear them up?

A.—These blemishes are usually due to faulty elimination. Proper diet and avoidance of constipation should bring about results. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Field General

Here's A. H. Stafford, quarterback of the Harvard football eleven, who is being counted upon to help carry the Crimson out of the rut it has been in for the last few seasons. Stafford is a heady field general, fast and an elusive runner in the open. This is his first year on the team.

Have Seized Tariff Issue For Campaign

Washington, Oct. 26. — Republican leaders have decided to seize the tariff issue agitated by international bankers this week and make it a big issue in the final campaign fireworks.

The battle-cry will be; "elect a Republican congress and save the tariff."

If any impression that the bankers intended modification of the American tariff in their manifesto gained credence it was due to the unfortunate wording of the statement, Republican leaders say.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is now preparing a formal document setting forth this view and the Republican campaign managers are making preparations to see that every voter gets it before he goes to the polls a week from Tuesday, to elect the next congress.

Suspicious of all developments surrounding the bankers statement, Democrats are remaining silent. Frankly they confess they do not know what to make of it. At first glance the statement which recommended lessening of European trade barriers to encourage European rehabilitation, bore to them the earmarks of a Democratic proposal. It sounded like an argument for reduction of the American tariff.

Woman Weight Lifter Dislikes Her Position

Paris.—France, it is believed, has the only woman weight lifter in the world. She is Mlle. Jane de Vesley, just out of her teens. Mlle. de Vesley can lift a 265-pound bar with one hand. Also with one arm she can lift and hold at arm's length a weight of eighty pounds. She juggles with thirty pound weights as one might with billiard balls.

Mlle. de Vesley has only one complaint. It is that she is the one weight lifter of her sex and therefore she has no records to break. She has not yet met with a real competitor.

If the majority of the votes cast are "Yes" it will indicate that Missouri citizens are in favor of the legalized liquor traffic. It will be absolute nullification of the 18th Amendment by removing from the state the power to enforce the prohibition law. It will remove from active enforcement work 6275 state, county and municipal officials whose business it is to aid in enforcement and place it entirely in the hands of approximately 75 Federal officers.

Let us rally to the defense of our State Laws—our State Honor and our State Pride by voting a tremendous "No" majority against Proposition No. 4 Loyal Missourians—Your State calls you.

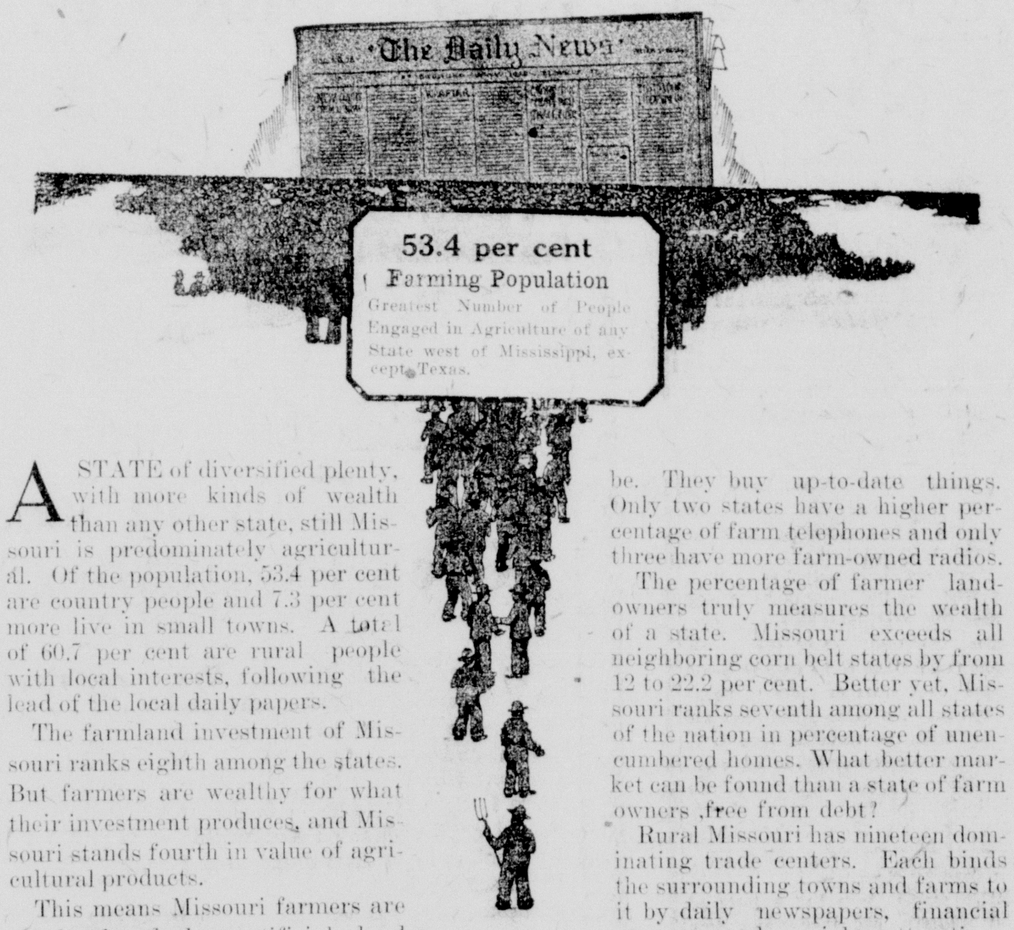
A Giant Rural Market



The Daily News
53.4 per cent
Farming Population
Greatest Number of People Engaged in Agriculture of any State west of Mississippi, except Texas.

A STATE of diversified plenty, with more kinds of wealth than any other state, still Missouri is predominately agricultural. Of the population, 53.4 per cent are country people and 7.3 per cent more live in small towns. A total of 60.7 per cent are rural people with local interests, following the lead of the local daily papers.

The farmland investment of Missouri ranks eighth among the states. But farmers are wealthy for what their investment produces, and Missouri stands fourth in value of agricultural products.

This means Missouri farmers are not burdened by artificial land values—that they are not suffering from a dead boom. Sound banking and thoughtful journalism have guided them, and their progress has been steady.

High transportation rates mean little to Missouri farmers. They have two great markets close at hand. Neither are taxes burdensome, as public improvements are handled by experienced business men and planned for all-time economy.

Missouri's rural people are prosperous right now—will continue to be. They buy up-to-date things. Only two states have a higher percentage of farm telephones and only three have more farm-owned radios.

The percentage of farmer landowners truly measures the wealth of a state. Missouri exceeds all neighboring corn belt states by from 12 to 22.2 per cent. Better yet, Missouri ranks seventh among all states of the nation in percentage of unencumbered homes. What better market can be found than a state of farm owners free from debt?

Rural Missouri has nineteen dominating trade centers. Each binds the surrounding towns and farms to it by daily newspapers, financial support and social attractions. These cities have always been jobbing centers. Good roads are making them great retail centers for an ever-expanding territory.

Missouri's rural market, totaling 2,068,975 people is controlled through these nineteen cities.

The easiest, most economical way to cover this great market is through the Missouri Associated Dailies—the newspapers Missouri people read, believe in and follow. The 22 daily papers comprising this association assure thorough coverage at a low rate.

DEMOCRAT-FORUM and TRIBUNE

Red Cross Secretary Also Must Qualify as Detective

Right here in Maryville we have imposters nearly every week of the world, says Miss Betty Turner, executive secretary of the Nodaway County chapter of the Red Cross. And we have "floaters" too. A Red Cross executive secretary must be more than an executive secretary. She must be a detective and a clever one at that.

Only last week three "floaters" appeared at the local Red Cross headquarters seeking aid from Miss Turner. Now a "floater" is one who goes from city to city seeking help from the various Red Cross chapters. One man may cost the Red Cross hundreds of dollars if he visits many chapters successfully.

And perhaps the floater has replaced the old time tramp, for, like the tramp, he has a way of letting his "buddies" know where help "comes easy."

And many of these men who appeal to the Red Cross have not seen service. It has become a common thing to forge army records, Miss Turner said.

"It is very hard," she said," to refuse help to the boys and men who come here, but when I can prove that they are imposters it is my duty to refuse them, hard as it is. We are guarding the people's money and it is our duty to help only those who deserve it.

"I hate to tell you this—but one of our own Nodaway County men is a floater. Each county is responsible for its own men and from other chapters we continually get orders for $5 and $10 for help that has been given our boy.

"He has a wife and child, but he does not return. We have tried to trace him and bring him back, but he is just a 'floater'."

Last week three men appealed to the Red Cross. One had a wife and two children and went to the local chapter for help. In telling of his case Miss Turner said: "He declared he was going from St. Louis to Galesburg, Ill., and here he was in Maryville, Mo. When I offered to wire the person he said was his employer at the expense of the Red Cross he refused to consent.

"At one time he said he was receiving assistance from the government, a $60 per month compensation, and later denied it. It is not fair to pass people like that to another city for help.

Another case of last week was a boy who admitted that he did not deserve assistance after Miss Turner had plied him with questions and discovered the discrepancies in his story.

"I have a sister in Tennessee. I wouldn't have her see me for anything in the world. I'm a hobo. I don't know how I got here. I am so low I have no self-respect," he said. He was not helped by the Red Cross, but he was given personal assistance at the Red Cross headquarters.

"Giving promiscuously to all, whether it is deserved or not, isn't charity. It is hard for the executive secretary, but after nine years experience, it isn't difficult to discover the deserving," Miss Turner concluded.

Campaign Slowing Up Government Machinery

Most Cabinet Members, Senators And Representatives Are Touring Country In Interest Of Candidates.

Washington, Oct. 26.—The machinery of government shows a slowing down awaiting the outcome of the Congressional election November 2, while most of the familiar figures of Washington are touring the country with final campaign speeches.

All cabinet officers, except secretary of State Kellogg, are on the stump or plan to leave this week. Only those Senator and Representatives who are directing the campaign nationally remain here. The others are campaigning.

Now appointments and orders on important questions of government policy will probably be delayed until after the voting so it may not be said they were timed to meet campaign exigencies.

Heading the cabinet force on tour is Secretary of Commerce Hoover, now moving through the West. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon may make the second campaign speech in his life in Pennsylvania late this week. Secretaries Work, Wilbur, Davis and Jardine are scheduled for addresses.

Democratic stumping is headed by John W. Davis, presidential nominee in 1924; William McAdoo, candidate in the Madison Square Garden convention, former Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby and former Secretary of Navy Josephus Daniels with all Democratic Senators and Representatives.

Efforts are being made here to have the 61,000 votes of federal employes cast in the election. President Coolidge will be asked by Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, to provide a demerit system in their home states. Newspaper advertisement urge federal employees to vote.

St. Louis—The Citizens' Bond issue Supervisory Committee has approved two proposed ordinances appropriating a total of $1,142,793 for sewer construction and part cost of reconstruction of Washington avenue.

Odessa—A ninety-year-old apple tree here, the sole survivor of an orchard set out in 1836, yielded apples this year. It is said to be the oldest bearing tree in the state.

PROPOSITION 2 ON NOVEMBER 2

Let Missouri Cities Provide For Their Police as Other Cities Do

Practically every city in the United States of 100,000 population or more, with the exception of Missouri cities, has a police pension system, to provide (1) For policemen who are permanently disabled in the performance of duty; (2) For the widows and minor children of policemen killed in the performance of duty; (3) For policemen who become incapacitated for active duty through age.

Missouri cities cannot establish police pension systems because of Constitutional restrictions. Proposition No. 2, to be voted upon at the election November 2, removes these restrictions, and will enable Missouri cities to provide for their police as other cities do.

For Better Protection to Life and Property

A police pension system will enable more efficient, more economical police administration, because policemen who grow old in the service and become incapacitated for effective duty could be retired and their places filled with active, efficient young men. It also will offer a great inducement for young men of more intelligence, ability and character to enter police work.

Efficient police in our large cities is of vital interest to every resident of the State. Because the prevention of crime throughout the State depends largely upon the standard of efficiency maintained in the police departments of our cities.

No Increase in Taxes

The adoption of Proposition No. 2 by the voters will not cost the taxpayers of the rural districts and small towns one cent. If police pensions are provided, they will be paid for by the people of the cities affected.

Spanish Notables Discuss Modern Dress; Most All Are Partial to Fewer Clothes

Madrid, Oct. 26.—What do Spanish artists think of feminine fashion? To this question, a number of them have replied with some interesting comments.

Aurora Jauffret, prominent vaudeville singer, better known as "La Goya," likes modern fashion because it is "loyal" and "free." "Previously, she said, women could, thanks to odd fashions, conceal imperfect parts of their body; men were "caught." Today surprises are almost impossible, and it is better that way. Personally, I prefer the classical Greek fashion to which we should go back, with reasonable adjustments to life in the twentieth century."

Conchita Piquer, the "Valencia Girl," who recently returned from the United States, thinks fashion should not be so "strict." The best ought to be what every woman likes for herself. "What I envy is the far-eastern fashion: Chinese and Japanese clothes especially appeal to me, she stated. Kimonos and pajamas for women are so agreeable to wear that fashion should evolve along this idea."

Encarnacion Lopez, "La Argentinta" by her stage name, one of the few cupletistas who have not bobbed their hair because they want to remain typically spanish, kicked against the present ugly fashions, and insisted she sticks to the old ones with convenient improvements.

Manuel Tovar, favorite cartoonist, believes post-war fashion is already "out of fashion," although it helped immensely in Spain, to abolish numerous prejudices women had kept about dressing. Also, thanks to simplified clothing, women can now dress in five minutes, and undress in one minute, he remarked. However, it is still complicated. The antique peplum was more artistic than most of the expensive dresses sold at the branches of the Paris firms in Madrid. "The ess clothing women will wear in the future, the better for everbody."

Rafel de Penagos, another well known artist who draws fine modern women, admitted frankly he prefers nudity to any dress, even the ultra short skirts; also that all women should have their hair cut short.

Manuel Benedito, whose paintings have made him "the fashionable painter, declared that modern fashion for his work, has the advantage of covering little and uncovering much. Benedito, however, urged women to invent something better than their combing system; "all undulated heads look alike," he claimed. Hair dressers should change fashion as clothes fashion changes with seasons.

Isabella Barron, comedian star, is also for the lightest possible, although moral, clothing. Short one piece dresses with nothing tight, this I consider the principal of fashion, she suggested, the rest being a question of detail and individual taste that should suffice to prevent women from looking alike. Thanks to such fashion, natural beauty could not pass unnoticed.

Finally, from a different point of view, Carman Moragas, the popular actress, thinks 1926 fashion represents the triumph of hygiene, but makes women lose their attractive aspect. "Before anything, esthetics should guide fashion," she said. "I am convinced we should take more and more to sports, the best cure against the historical fatness of Spanish women.

NODAWAY COUNTY FARM NEWS

By BILLY TILSON.

Ernest Willhoyte, west of Maryville, has a fine bunch of spring gilts and boars. He has raised a greater number but never a better quality. Ernest has tried all breeds but says the Hampshire is his pride. He will have a sale in a short time and breeders can look them over.

A large consignment of hogs and cattle were sold at the Hosmer sale Saturday at the Wallace pavilion. We failed to get the number sold and a few of the buyers.

Joe Carden, southeast of Quitman, is cutting down the hill just west of the river bridge and making a fill in the road running west. This road at that point has been impassable for some time but when Joe gets through with the work it will be in good shape to travel. He has ten teams hauling the dirt and ten men shoveling it into the wagons and two men leveling it off. He has a caterpiller tractor and grader loosening up the dirt. Green township is paying the bill and it looks as though there ought to be some county help.

Frank Miller, southeast of Hopkins and his brother of near Blanchard, Ia., were transacting business in the city Saturday.

Elmer Owens, southeast of Quitman, took two loads of extra good stock cattle out to his farm Saturday. He says he expects them to eat up his grass then they will be put on feed. Elmer has a fine bunch of shoats that will be ready to go in the feed lot with them.

We saw a few farmers of the county sowing wheat last week. The ground was not working very good but they were eager to get it in the ground. The acreage is going to be small this fall. A few have begun to crib corn but the fields in most places are hard to get out with a load. Those that have gathered any corn say the yield is disappointing and considerable of it will be a poor quality. In some places where the corn is down, whole ears can be seen growing.

J. F. Ford of Maryville who took over the Grigsby orchard this fall to gather the crop and put the apples on the market has picked around 4,000 bushels and they have nearly all been sold. Most of them are being shipped from the orchard to the purchaser in bulk.

Scientists Baffled Over Unusual Weather

Can't Fathom Hurricanes And Earthquakes——Storm Season Ends With Cold Weather.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Scientists are nearly as baffled over the peculiar weather of 1926 as police are over most murders. The last of a record series of South Atlantic hurricanes no sooner had swept Havana than a new earthquake arrived in California to plague them.

Weather bureau officials and other scientists state, however, that hurricane season is about over and West Indian storms from now on generally blow themselves out into the Atlantic. Florida, it was said, should be safe and pleasant quarters for this winter.

A dozen hurricanes have occured this year, setting a record since 1916, when thirteen hurricanes occured, and 1887 when there were sixteen.

Earthquake shocks are due to shifts and sudden readjustments of "earth faults"—cracks in the earth's crust.

Father Tondorf of Georgetown University, noted seisomologist, and other reputable earthquake observers assert earthquakes cannot be predicted now.

Earthquarkes do not follow season courses. Most of the American quakes occur in the far West.

Hurricanes in the East average six and one half a year. Less than one in ten land in thickly settled localities.

The hurricane season starting in June ends with the winters coming. The early season storms after rising near the Bermudas or in the Caribbean usually pass into the Gulf of Mexico, while the late-season ones usually miss land altogether and pass off northwestward into the Atlantic.

Trial Marriages Not For the Best

Ethical Society Leader, Speaking In St. Louis, Says It Would Coarsen Society.

St. Louis, Oct. 26.—Trial Marriage would coarsen society in the opinion of Henry J. Golding, leader of the New York Ethical Society. Speaking before the St. Louis society, he deplored the modern tendency of many young people to apply the experimental method to marriage.

"The companionate or temporary union," Golding said "would be a revival of that ancient institution, concubinage. Its advocates urge that sex experience is desirable before a lifelong contract is entered into.

"But if the companionate became general it would increase misery and nervous disorders, through the tensions, the jealousies, desertions, and regrets of those cast aside.

"Where variety of sex experience is pursued with the object of discovering at length, one's affinity, the personality disintegrates. What kind of a family life could be expected from a man and a woman, both balse, after multiplied experiences, who finally embark together on a permanent marriage?"

Cape Girardeau—Seventy per cent of the voters of this city will be eligible to vote at the November election, since 5,701 persons registered recently. It is estimated that there are 8,000 voters here.

Gallatin—Better prices were paid for stock exhibited at the fifth annual pig show than at any previous sale. The sale was held the day following the following the annual show.
